UNITED WILL "TURN IT ON" AGAINST NSW ON SUNDAY, BUSBY PROMISES

— BY PAUL DEAN —

"This was merely an appetiser," said Manchester United boss Matt Busby after last week's Sydney match. "We'll turn it on in the second game."

A threat or a promise, take it as you like — but Busby meant it.

On Sunday afternoon Manchester United will face NSW and you can expect fireworks.

The visitors, now having met and properly assessed the local opposition, will undoubtedly go into this match with a carefully laid plan.

They will also be rested — the first time on their tour — as six blissful days will have passed since their last game, in Newcastle.

BEST AGAIN

It is reasonable to expect that on Sunday Manchester United will put near-maximum effort into their performance.

Crerand should be fit again while Law can be expected to be back at his best.

Best? Yes, George Best will be there, too, and so will the graceful Bobby Charlton and the others.

I would like to draw special attention to a young boy in the United team — the tall Brian Kidd.

If this fellow doesn't become an England international star within a couple of years, I'll eat Sir Alf Ramsey's clothcap.

Now, what about the NSW team?

Finally Joe Marston has had a chance to get his boys together and a week's joint training should show results on Sunday.

It is probable that the team will be basically the same as the Sydney XI was — several of the players just about select themselves.

Team now rested

The NSW defence should again be formidable, built on the broad shoulders of John Watkiss and Pat Hughes.

But it's in the forward line that we keep falling down on the job.

Last week only Baartz and Warren displayed enough enterprise to worry the United defenders — but neither is a genuine striker.

And this is what NSW would need, two of them, to bang in some goals.

United, the various NSW forward lines (Abonyi being the only "outsider") scored only once.

And that is a poor show in anybody's language.

It would be futile to expect that NSW will score a shock win on Sunday afternoon.

We would be pleased with another narrow defeat — provided the match itself reached a high standard.

Matt Busby has promised that this would happen.

And we have no reason to doubt the word of this extremely likeable man who has the habit of keeping his promises.

Manchester's fine record

Since the end of World War II, Manchester United have won the FA Cup twice — 1948 and 1963 — and the English First Division championship five times, the last only a month ago.

This will qualify them for the 1967-68 European Champions' Cup in which they had taken part before.

In 1956-57, 1957-58 and 1965-66 they always reached the semifinals.

In the European Cupwinners' Cup United appeared only once, in 1963-64 when they progressed as far as the quarterfinals.

In Europe's third major tourney, the Fair Cities' Cup, Manchester United also reached the semis in 1964-65.

J. Giacometti (APIA)

But who could fit the bill? Giacometti? Alagich? Or perhaps the still deadly Ninaus?

Whoever they will be, Joe Marston must at least try to unearth a goalscorer.

In four matches against Scotland and Manchester

Denis Law soars high to head home Manchester's first goal against Sydney XI last week.

George Best shows one of his inimitable dribbling tricks to fullback Brian Lincoln.

Ron Corry and Denis Law watch as a leg appears and hooks the ball away from them.

SYDNEY CLUB PATROL

The ASF will decide at its Executive Meeting in Sydney this weekend whether to invite the full Swedish national team to undertake a five-match tour of Australia in February-March 1968. The ASF will also determine whether it will allocate the $30,000 asked for by vice-president Jim Bayutti for the preparation of Australia's national team for coming World Cup elimination matches.

Received a postcard from Polonia-North Side president, DR. ROSSLEIGH, in Warsaw last week. The Doctor saw the Scotland-Israel match in Tel Aviv and was surprised Australia didn't beat the Scots. He also saw the European Cup final on TV and in Switzerland watched Lugano v. Grasshoppers Zurich. "The Celtic-Inter game was terrific, but the Swiss and Israeli matches appalling", according to Rossleigh.

Melita Eagles secretary NICK BONELLO was injured at the party given to Manchester United at the Showground after the game last Wednesday week. He left the party room for some fresh air, and a few minutes later was found on the nearby lawn unconscious and bleeding profusely from a head wound that required 14 stitches at St. Vincent's Hospital.

TED BELL, secretary of the Hunter District Protestant Churches Association, is seeking extra nets for his competitions. The Association is in its second year and has over 300 players. For any Sydney clubs who can help, Bell's address is 108 Alnwick St., North Lambton.

JOHN WELLHAM, one of Newcastle's top young players, has suffered another leg injury, which is likely to put him on the sidelines for some time to come.

Melita Eagles have signed a forward from Second Division Scottish club, Dumbarton. He is 21-year-old ALLAN BARKHEAD, who slipped unnoticed into Sydney a month ago.

PADDY BONHAM, Croatia's Irish fullback, is back in training and keen to resume playing. Doctors, however, have advised him not to play for at least another month.

RIVERSIDE RAPIDS' second grade side failed to take the field against Liverpool Inter in the First Division Inter-Suburban Amateur League last Saturday. Rapids, however, scored a crushing 7-2 victory in first grade.

The WESTERN SUBURBS Soccer Club lavishly entertained the entire Manchester United party at their clubrooms at Fivedock last Tuesday week for dinner.

Melita Eagles have signed young inside-forward ROGER KERRY who played with English Third Division club Crystal Palace. He will make his debut with Melita as soon as he receives a clearance from his former club.

BERT JAGGER, Lane Cove's inside right who was injured in the game against Granville, will be out for at least another two weeks with a leg injury.

The fiancée of Pan Hellenic's new English player, ALLAN HIGNETT, will join him soon in Australia. They plan to marry and settle here permanently.

liberately, we just collided." Giles begs to disagree. "Law grabbed me by my shirt and buffed his head against my cheek". Result: Giles this week had an operation for a fractured jaw.

RON GILES, the Croatia forward injured in the Sydney v. Manchester United match, underwent a jaw operation last Monday. Giles will be out of action for three weeks.

THEY ALL WANT YARDLEY

Bolton Wanderers are among many English clubs bidding for the services of George Yardley, St. George-Budapest's former centre-forward.

Yardley was the star of Fourth Division Tranmere Rovers this year and played the major part in the club's promotion to Third Division by scoring many vital goals.

Wolverhampton, Bury and Aston Villa are also interested in signing the Scottish-born centre-forward who seems destined for a big and bright future in British soccer.

Ironically, Giles was to have spent Monday in Newcastle to watch his former friends play against United.

KEN AKERS, the Heanor Town fullback due here soon from England, will join St. George-Budapest.

DAVID BARBER, 16-year-old Hornsby North End inside forward, has made his debut in first grade. He has won the admiration of officials and spectators by his tireless displays and natural football ability. David Brown, last year's State under-18 utility forward is improving with every match and is settling down to the rugged games of Second Division soccer. Both boys represent their high schools in soccer at Epping and Asquith, respectively.

PHIL CODD, secretary of the Auckland Referees' Association, has made many refereeing contacts whilst in Sydney on business over the past few weeks. Codd refereed the main Auckland match against Manchester United.

The wife and child of Croatia's Australian international fullback, NIGEL SHEPHERD, flew to their native Scotland for a holiday last week.

Dr. MORRIS POZNIAK, the former Hakoah president, was a member of the medical team which left for Israel last week.

Melita Eagles' president, VINCE PISANI, left for an overseas trip on Friday. Pisani hopes to see some Pro. League games in the USA, particularly in Pittsburgh, where five Maltese players operate.

A blue raincoat was lost at the Sydney XI v. Manchester match. Finder will receive reward. Janos Palosy, phone 39-1378 (after 8 p.m.).

NEW SCOT MAKES FINE DEBUT FOR USC LION

— From ALLAN CRISP in Adelaide —

USC Lion's newest Scottish importation, Jim Cattanaach, made an impressive debut against Croatia last Saturday, and could be the revelation of the season.

Cattanaach's distribution and tackling stamped him as a class stopper.

His splendid display lifted Lion to a shock win over Croatia — their first victory in five games.

At 6'4" Cattanaach is the tallest player in Adelaide.

He holds a degree in engineering and played for Motherwell and Morton in Scotland.

transfer fee for Richard Urbaniak.

Urbaniak, the son of former Polonia and SA forward, Henry Urbaniak, was transferred from Adelaide to Melbourne by Woolworths, in February.

He has since changed his employment and wishes to settle permanently in Victoria.

Polonia initially asked for $2,000 but later reduced the fee to $1,750.

Melbourne Juventus countered with an offer of $1,000 but this was rejected.

Urbaniak was a member of the 1964 SA Youth team which won the Australian championship and was a key forward in Polonia's Ampol Cup winning team last year.

Ted Tims, have been given the right to co-opt other members.

The major problem facing the sub-committee will be to break through the apathy barrier of those schools which refuse to allow soccer to be played.

A.S.F. PRESIDENT IS KNIGHTED

William Gaston Walkley, president of the Australian Soccer Federation, was among the 17 new Australian knights created by the Queen in her Birthday Honor's List last week.

Sir William retired as managing director of Ampol Petroleum Oil Limited in 1963. He founded the company in 1936.

Born in New Zealand in 1896, he was a telegram boy and then served in the NZ Expeditionary Force throughout World War I.

His company led the search for oil in Australia by forming the West Australian Petroleum Company, mainly on his initiative.

Sir William is also the president of Thiess Holdings Ltd. and president of the Royal NSW Institute for Deaf and Blind Children.

He was elected president of the ASF in 1963, succeeding the late Dr. Henry Seamonds.

To Sir William and Lady Walkley, SOCCER WORLD extends its congratulations.

MELB. HSC WILL HAVE BIG TEST

— From BOB LOW in Melbourne —

After a three week lay-off the State League program resumes with the half-way mark about to be reached and Melbourne still on top closely followed by Hakoah and Juventus.

At the other end of the ladder Alexander are only slightly worse off than Makedonia.

It's a really cracking program this weekend with league leaders, Melbourne clashing with their closest rivals, Hakoah who rattled on eight goals in their last game against JUST.

Melbourne, carrying no "passengers" and fighting for every ball, could win.

Juventus, equal in points but inferior in goal average to Hakoah, face tough opposition in the improving Polonia.

The more balanced Juventus may scramble through to a win.

"Bottom dogs" Alexander meet Croatia and have a real chance of improving their lot with their all-action attack which may outpace Croatia.

Hellas, triple league champions for the past three years, will do well to remember that the Lions are a vastly improved side with plenty of spirit and much improved team-work.

However, Hellas with superior class in attack should clinch both points.

Makedonia, badly placed in the ladder but with an all-action side could cause the shock of the round by beating Slavia which have too many off days to be consistent.

In the remaining game JUST who have served up some drab displays recently will have to show a great improvement to even snatch one point from George Cross which are destined to climb the league ladder.

Melbourne program

SATURDAY:

Polonia v. Juventus — Olympic Park
Croatia v. Alexander — Maribynong
Melbourne v. Hakoah — St. Kilda

SUNDAY:

SM Hellas v. Lions — Middle Park
Makedonia v. Slavia — Preston
JUST v. George Cross — Olympic Park

COOK'S TOUR

Vojtek must get a chance

One of the shock omissions from the Victorian squad has been the dynamic 23-year-old Croatia forward, Billy Vojtek.

Although not recognised in the past as a centre forward, he has been filling the number nine spot for his side with success this season.

For some reason selectors and even some soccer writers dismiss Vojtek for the big games without giving any tangible explanation.

I know that for several years he spoiled his game by selfishness.

But this tendency has disappeared and his game has subsequently improved and for his natural talents, sheer soccer skill and ability to snap up even half a chance with a powerful shot I can see no better footballer in the Victorian squad.

In fact if any forward in Victoria is anywhere close to matching a first class overseas player it's Billy Vojtek.

It's not too late to call Vojtek into the squad and at least let him play their return match with Manchester United.

Croatia and Duncan McKay have for the time resolved their differences and the player will continue with the club until the end of this season unless some last minute developments arise in connection with his wish for a move.

Should this happen it's on the cards that McKay could move to the struggling Alexander as player-coach.

After almost six months of inactivity through a dispute with Alexander, Tom Robertson has made a re-entry back into State League soccer — with George Cross, to whom he was recently transferred.

George Cross beat Lions for Robertson who had offered Franz Schwartz in part exchange.

Schwartz himself refused to move to Alexander.

An experienced player with great ball control, Tommy Robertson had been in both Scottish and English soccer before coming to Australia two years ago.

He saw service with Rangers, Dundee, Cowdenbeath and several non-league sides in England.

On the right side of 30 and looking younger than he is, Robertson should be an asset to George Cross once he gets tuned up and with a few games under his belt.

Figuring in a double move recently which saw their wing-half and former captain-coach Willie Hamilton transfer to Makedonia with Alan Hillhouse of St. George-Budapest joining them, Lions have another deal pending.

They are still keen to get Willie Todd of St. George, a former team-mate of Hillhouse and who was the subject of some dissension between them and St. George when he first came to Australia.

One player Lions would like to buy is Slavia inside forward or winger, Charlie McCorquodale.

A frequent visitor to Melbourne recently has been Wally Tkachuk the energetic and enterprising USC Lions Adelaide official.

He has been a man with a mission.

With his side planked on the bottom and having an atrocious scoring record, he has made no bones of the fact that a scoring striker is high on his priority list.

However, any players in this category in State League soccer are likely to remain there.

This includes the former Lions centre, Ian Monan, whom the Adelaide club have been credited with wanting back now for a long time.

Without a shadow of doubt Juventus have been the hardest hit side in the State League this year with injuries.

Out of action for many weeks has been promising local product, Dario Epifano, who is equally at home at inside forward or on the wing.

He recently underwent a second operation for a leg injury.

Missing from the Juventus line-up all the league season has been Eric Norman, the club's hard hitting centre forward who played for Victoria against Sparta Prague and recently left hospital after a cartilage operation.

Also on the sidelines and only a few weeks back from Scotland is crack-shot forward Jim Malloy, victim of a leg injury.

CANBERRA SEEKS TOURISTS

Canberra fans have been asking why the Australian Federation did not consider Canberra as a venue for a game involving either Scotland or Manchester United.

The ASF's snub has sparked off strong criticism in Canberra.

I doubt very much that local fans expected to, or really wanted to see an ACT XI perform, but rather an Australian XI or a State side.

There is no doubt that such a match would be a tremendous boost to the game in the ACT and it would draw at least double the crowd of 3,500 that turned up to see Chelsea play an ACT XI in 1965.

Perhaps the ACT could soothe the ACT fans' feeling's if it would give thought to staging the Australia Cup game featuring the ACT representative in Canberra.

Previous experience has shown that the ACT side does not draw well in Sydney and Melbourne.

However, it would be in the interests of the game to test Canberra's drawing power, in what would be the first ever "competitive" match featuring a top local team in the National Capital. — John Holland.

selections for the Greek "A" team. Rated one of the greatest Greek players of all times while with AEK.

● Mike De Bruyckere (Wilhelmina-Melbourne). The only full Dutch international ever to operate in Australia. Coach of the Victorian State team.

● Jock Aird, a Scottish international against Norway, and Uruguay and Austria in the 1954 World Cup finals; Karl Jaros, who played for Austria against Brazil in 1956, and Ginter

Gawlik, 14-time Polish international, are other full European internationals based in Sydney, but no longer active in topflight soccer.

Gyula Polgar, the Canterbury coach, played for Hungary in the 1930's and appeared in the 1938 World Cup final against Italy in Paris.

Josef Venglos, Australia's national team coach, gained two full Czechoslovakian selections while playing for Slovan Bratislava five years ago.

Two Sydney coaches, who have since returned to Europe, were also full internationals.

Stefan Cambal, formerly of Prague, played for Czechoslovakia in the final of the 1934 World Cup against Italy in Rome and Frank Broome, the former Bankstown and Corinthians coach, was capped for England in the late 1930's.

Many players who returned home after a spell with Australian clubs also represented their country. They were:

Ron Hewitt (Wales), Des Palmer (Wales), Angelo Mavropoulos (Greece), Eddie Zientara (Poland), Anton Moravcik (Czechoslovakia), Billy Perry (England), Mladen Krgin (Yugoslavia), Danny Clapton (England), Raffi Levi (Israel), Gerry Chaldi (Israel), and Danay Schmulovitch (Israel).

Paradoxically, Leopold Baumgartner, the Austrian wizard whom most Australians would rate as the greatest player ever to appear in Australia, never played for his native country in a full international. Baumgartner, while with Vienna's FK Austria, was only selected in the Austrian "B" team. The genial centre-forward, however, played for his adopted country against Everton in 1964.

Golden boy

Other top-class "imports" who made their mark on Australian soccer, but never played for their country include the former South Coast skipper Jim Kelly (ex-Blackpool); England's "golden boy" of the mid-1950's, Alick Jeffrey; Cumberland United's present coach Len Quested, only a "B" international when playing for Huddersfield and APIA's current Argentinian star, Ricardo Campana.

A few players went on to achieve international honors only when they returned home from Australia. Polonia-Sydney's Josef Galeczka became a regular member of the Polish national squad almost straight upon his return from Australia in 1962, and the Austrian pair of Erwin Ninaus (ex-Prague) and Adolf Blutsch (ex-Hakoah-Sydney) gained "B" caps for Austria shortly after returning home three and a half years ago.

Match rating: * * *

Hakoah struck their best form of the season to completely crush Yugal for one of their best wins this year. The half-back line of Walsh, Marnoch and Duffy controlled the midfield throughout the game, but the best football was produced by the frontline trio of Fekete, Yaager and Baartz. Undoubtedly, Baartz' recent outings with the Australian and Sydney teams have sharpened his ability as a striker, and he proved it with a magnificent hat-trick. Apart from a few attacks in the opening minutes of the game, Yugal never looked dangerous and the defence — under pressure for most of the time — made many bad mistakes.

Match rating: * * *

Croatia can consider themselves lucky to escape with a draw. On the defensive for most of the game, they can thank Melita's lack of strikers for getting away with a point. Faster and more resolute, Melita Eagles spent most of the match in Croatia territory but failed to capitalise on many gilt-edged chances. Croatia confirmed they are jaded. They never functioned as a team and allowed their opponents to dominate the midfield. The match was a drab affair in the first half, but livened up after the interval as both teams strove desperately, but with little science, for victory.

Crowd: 1,400.

Match rating: * * *

The more enterprising and faster forward line won the Saints the match. St. George were the better team throughout due to the great midfield work of Cliss, Zuckerman and Schaefer. Hakoah looked tired and lacked their usual fire. Their star goalkeeper, Fuzes had a very poor day and was probably instrumental in all three goals. The match was entertaining and clean but seldom reached high standards.

Crowd: 3,000.

Artarmon goalie stars in draw

— By KEITH GILMOUR —

Artarmon goalkeeper Norm Kern was one of the key players in his club's 0-0 draw with the Inter Suburban First Division leader Marrickville at Mackey Park on Queens Birthday.

Kern turned in an inspiring performance in a match that was full of fluid movement, attack and parry, and midfield battles.

His effort was particularly outstanding, as this was his fourth full match in two days.

With the regular second grade 'keeper unavailable, Kern played in both grades against South Sydney at Booralee Park on Sunday, and then in both grades against Marrickville on Monday.

The games against South Sydney were hard fought and 3-3 was the First Grade result.

North Sydney gained an invaluable two points against Ryde at Cammeray Park, and is now in second position.

Riverside jumped from 9th to 5th place in Second Division.

Their win against Liverpool Inter was anticipated, but a 2-1 result at home against Belmore came out of the blue.

Dee Why were not disgraced in losing to Enmore 2-4 at Dee Why Oval on Saturday.

An excellent attendance was thrilled by the standard of football.

Enmore was held to 2-2 at half time.

After a good goal from Enmore, a defensive mistake by Dee Why gave them a fourth.

Dee Why fought back, but goals eluded them.

In another game on Monday, Dee Why were not troubled by Ku-ring-gai, and ran out winners 5-1.

SECOND DIVISION

Only two games this weekend in Sydney

— By CHARLES SPITERI —

Only two matches were played last weekend due to the wet weather, and consequently there were some major changes in the competition table.

Granville, who failed to play on Saturday lost their top place on the table, which is now headed by Manly, who won their match against North Bankstown by a close margin.

Sutherland v.

Western Suburbs 3-1

Sutherland showed better team work and held territorial advantage over their opponents throughout the game.

Joe Marston, who is out of match practice, took the field in place of the injured regular fullback Bastion.

Sutherland took the lead in the first minute when Corfield drove into the net a perfect pass from Shrubsole.

Western Suburbs equalised midway through the first half when Smit headed in a perfect pass from the right flank.

Davidson made 2-1 for Sutherland just before half-time when he scored a rebound after West's 'keeper Iro failed to hold a hard drive by Corfield.

Sutherland sealed the match midway through the second half when from a corner kick the ball was cleared to the unmarked Roach who slammed the ball into the net from close range.

Sutherland: Pines; Turner, Rattenbury; O'Brian, O'Reilly, Griffiths; Davidson (1), Shrubsole, Roach (1), Corfield (1), S. Cucitti.

Western Suburbs: Iro; Marston, Apostilidis; Holmes, Bijkerk, Dyer; Omeros, Bosklopper, Griffin, Davies, Smit (1).

Manly v.

North Bankstown 2-1

North Bankstown, playing at the peak of their form, nearly pulled the biggest surprise of the round when they led Manly 1-0 until the last four minutes of their game at Graham Reserve.

Manly got a fright early in the second half when North Bankstown took the lead with a perfect shot from Roberts.

Trying as they did, Manly could not get the equaliser as the North Bankstown youngsters were still full of running and repulsed all the Manly attacks.

The turning point of the match came four minutes from time when from a scrimmage in front of North's goal the ball was stopped by a fullback.

From the spot kick, Greg Jones made no mistake and two minutes later Hughes collected a pass and smashed it home past goalkeeper Howes from 30 yards out to give Manly both points.

Manly: Dark (Tuinman); McGrath, Brooks; Verrills, Campbell, Freeman; R. Jones, Ridding, G. Jones (1), Hughes (1), Waller.

North Bankstown: Howes, Baber, Cleverly; Watson, Tvas, Thorpe; Duncan, Marchetto, Scabill, Roberts (1), Mula.

THIS WEEKEND

Only two matches will be played this weekend, one at the Sydney Cricket Ground No. 2 between Lane Cove and Sutherland and the other between Bankstown and Marconi at Bankstown Oval.

Sutherland, after their good performance against Western Suburbs this week, should collect both points against Lane Cove while Bankstown should beat Marconi.

ON SATURDAY

PRAGUE TO WIN

The only First Division competition match this weekend is a deferred Anzac Day game between Prague and South Coast United, which will be played at Marks Field on Saturday.

With the two teams locked on eight points at the foot of the ladder this is a vital game for both sides.

South Coast, as they always do in Sydney, will probably again play a defensive game and settle for a draw.

Prague, the more attacking team, will rely on their forwards to gain the points to lift themselves to a more respectable position on the table.

Likely teams:

Prague: Earl; Harcombe, Moulson; Blacker, Zeman, Scheinflug; Povey, Blanco, G. Manuel, Hoggart, Gauto.

South Coast: Nuell; Strachan, Salisbury; Carr, Barnes, Harrison; Beattie, Barnett, Tolson, Barnaba, Paterson.

MANCHESTER'S FURY MAY BE LET LOOSE

In their return match with Victoria at Olympic Park on Wednesday under lights, Manchester United should produce something much better than they did on the first occasion if they are to leave behind a lasting impression as English league champions and one of the best club sides in world soccer.

To be quite frank, in the first game — and despite the absence of Denis Law, Bill Foulkes and Pat Crerand — they looked a pretty ordinary side.

Only their distinct advantage in pace and the superb play of George Best stood out above an average performance.

However, United officials and players were obviously disappointed with their first showing in Melbourne and make no bones of the fact they can lift their game immensely for the return match.

It's no secret that they are intent in this second game to go flat out and reveal fully their superiority.

The inclusion of Law, Crerand and Foulkes will of course make a difference.

But even without any of this trio Manchester should be able to emphasise their superiority.

United were out of touch, out of form and failed to reveal the form expected of them in the first game.

We can and must expect something better from them on this occasion.

Victoria, at a big disadvantage in pace, class and teamwork, will have a hard job of improving on their first result with United.

The second half followed pretty much the same pattern as the first and the only bright spot for United was the display of Kidd who replaced Ryan at half time.

United managed to get to the front when Bobby Charlton scored with a left foot drive which gave Schroif no chance at all.

Two minutes later Victoria were on level terms through a gift when David Sadler, attempting to head past for a corner, saw his effort go between the posts to beat Stepney for a goal.

Schroif, Van Alphen, Cook and McMeechan were Victoria's heroes and Best, Dunne and Foulkes starred for United.

Details:
Victoria: Schroif; Keith, High; Cook, Van Alphen, Randles; Abonyi, Micie, Sanchez, Armstrong (Anderson), McMeechan.

Manchester United: Stepney; Brennan, Dunne; Fitzpatrick, Sadler, Stiles; Best, Ryan, Cantwell, Charlton, Aston. Kidd replaced Ryan at half time.

Scorers: Charlton 57 min., Sadler 59 min. (own goal).

UNITED DISAPPOINTED THE NOVOCASTRIANS

— BY JACK MATTHEWS —

Manchester United did not make any real effort to defeat Northern NSW 3-0 at the Newcastle Sportsground last Monday.

United's football was tradesmanlike, but lacked sparkle and was a big disappointment to the 14,700 spectators who expected much from the English League champions.

The ground was in poor condition with the centre almost a sea of mud, but Manchester mainly developed their attacks down the drier flanks.

These raids, however, although convincing at their start broke down when they came up against a hard-working Northern defence which had little but its direct methods to recommend it.

The tackling was good and the United forwards, content to sit on an early lead, refused to meet it, preferring to avoid direct clashes and the chance of injury.

Newcastle's use of the 4-3-3 system spoilt the game as a spectacle and the players performed with little constructive purpose.

The locals, with only three forwards in attack, had very few chances and disappointed when they did not make a strong bid in the second half with the wind behind them.

Manchester led 1-0 at the break, but had not appeared to be eager to lead by more.

They had dozens of chances, but most of their shooting was wild.

United's superior stamina allowed them to dominate and have things their own way only in the last 20 minutes when the gallant Novocastrians tired badly.

Newcastle's best were Woods, Brady and Lloyd while Charlton, Best, Stiles, Foulkes and Brennan starred for the visitors.

Details:

Northern NSW: Dorman, Woods, Curran, Brady, Doolan, Lloyd, Cameron, Schneider, Whitmore, Scott (Byrrell), Pont.

Manchester Utd.: Rimmer, Brennan, Dunne, Fitzpatrick, Foulkes, Stiles, Best, Sadler, Charlton, Kidd, Aston.

Scorers: Kidd 8 and 72 mins., Best 85 min.

Schroif gave great display

Relying mainly on a strong defence with Willem Schroif in excellent form, Victoria caused a major shock by holding the English champions to a 1-1 draw before a 34,000 crowd at Olympic Park.

United were disappointing and only George Best lived up to his reputation.

Bobby Charlton was only average in the first half while in the second half he was seldom seen.

United took up the early attacks in which Best was prominent with some mazy runs and it was soon obvious that the Manchester players were at least a yard faster to the ball than the Victorians.

However, if the Victorians were slow and hesitant in parting with the ball the United players seemed easily dispossessed and played a too straight formation in attack in the early stages to be effective.

Manchester had several good chances in the first half but their finishing was erratic and off target and Schroif dealt effectively with all that came his way.

Victoria, too, had chances and both Armstrong and Abonyi missed opportunities to open the home side's account.

High school side in Bathurst test

Saturday June 24 will be the final trial date for Sydney CHS players for the season's school representative games.

The Sydney team will be at Bathurst from July 14-16 for the intrastate series.

The NSW CHS teams to tour South Australia and Queensland respectively in August-September will be selected at Bathurst.

The CHS Sydney team will also be engaged in various representative games, including the matches against Sydney Teachers College and the Royal Military College Duntroon.

The CHS Tasman Cup third round is due to be completed by June 23.

Schools competing are the finalists from each of the nine groups.

Punchbowl and Epping will be an interesting match, with Punchbowl fielding John Hargraves, a left-back of great potential who has represented CHS at 16 years of age.

Greg. Byles, who plays with Pan Hellenic thirds is another youngster of great potential.

He will appear for East Hills against Newcastle.

Fort Street showed that they should test Cleveland Street by gaining a win

MELITA MOCKS RULING

Melita Eagles for the second time in as many weeks last Saturday made a mockery of the quota rule.

In the match against Croatia at the SCG No. 2 they withdrew winger Wynn after 12 minutes and replaced him with Hutchison, thus only fielding two quota players — Stuart and Mullan — for the greater part of the match.

The previous week the unfortunate Wynn's first team appearance was even briefer.

He was pulled off after only five minutes to make way for Reid, and Melita again only played with two Australians — also Stuart and Mullan.

In both instances Melita's tactics were obvious from the kick-off as the substitutes were warming up on the touchline the minute the game got under way.

So far this season Melita is the only team to openly flaunt the quota rule by using the loophole offered by the substitution ruling.

Scots in New Zealand

The Scottish tourists won both their matches in New Zealand most convincingly. Scotland beat Combined Wellington 7-2 in the New Zealand capital, then trounced Auckland 4-0. A crowd of 16,000 saw the first match, 18,000 the second.

Holy coincidence...

Recently the priest and parishioners of a Catholic church in Glasgow arranged a pilgrimage to Fatima, Portugal, not far from Lisbon. The period of their stay there was around May 25 — the day when Celtic, Scotland's Catholic team, met Inter Milan in the European Cup final...

Broome's big sweep

New Exeter City manager Frank Broome, just back from Australia, is making a big clear-out. So far he has given free transfers to 12 players while others are listed with a tag. He has retained only eight players, obviously planning to sign some new players soon.

Lure of the lira

Helmut Haller, the German Bologna ace itching for a transfer has had his mind changed for him by club president Luigi Goldini — with a re-signing on fee of $65,000, cash.

Jim's wanderlust

Scottish starlet Jim McCalliog, who recently toured Australia, is determined to leave Sheffield Wednesday. Although only 20, he has played professional soccer for Leeds, Chelsea and Wednesday. His transfer fee will be about $250,000.

Slavia Prague's December tour?

Slavia Prague will play in Hong Kong on December 16 and 18. The Czechs will also play in the US, Singapore and Tahiti and have tentatively included Australia in their itinerary. Their provisional schedule calls for six days in Australia, between December 4 and 10.

Puskas wants to help

Ferenc Puskas, toying with the idea of accepting a big American coaching offer, has offered his services to coach Finland's national team for a month. Puskas has fond memories of Finland as it was in Helsinki, in 1952, that he won the Olympic soccer gold medal with the Hungarian team.

Big field for Merdeka

West Australia's opponents in the Merdeka Tournament in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, between August 10 and 26, will be Burma, Nationalist China, Hong Kong, India, Indonesia, Japan, South Korea, Singapore, Thailand, South Vietnam and Malaysia. Matches will be played at the Merdeka Stadium, Kuala Lumpur, and Ipoh's Stadium Perak. All teams will be accommodated at the Kuala Lumpur Technical Teachers' Training College.

Europe's coaching clinic

Europe's fourth international coaching clinic will be held at Zeist, in Holland, on June 25. The course is open to all fully qualified coaches in Europe. More than 400 have enrolled. Some of the world's top coaches will act as instructors, including Schoen, Heriberto Herrera, Shankly and Riera.

Celtic in great demand

Since their European Cup triumph, Celtic have been flooded with invitations. Celtic are booked out solid until the start of the 1967-68 Scottish season and their players won't have much time for a breather. Celtic last week beat Real Madrid 1-0 in Di Stefano's testimonial match in Madrid before a crowd of 100,000. In the next few weeks Celtic will play against Dukla Prague, Barcelona, Vasco de Gama (Brazil), Ajax Amsterdam, Tottenham and Anderlecht.

US leagues may merge

Sir Stanley Rous, the FIFA president, is now in America to discuss an amalgamation between the two feuding soccer bodies in the States. It seems likely that the NPSL (breakaway pro league) will be granted affiliation soon. The "rebels" are drawing poor gates, only averaging 5,000 spectators, whereas the affiliated league, recognized by the US Association, draws crowds of around 30,000 for its matches featuring top overseas clubs. It's now very much on the cards that the 1968 US competition will be a joint venture.

Inter-Milan top drawcard

Inter Milan proved themselves the top drawcard in Italian soccer in 1966-67. Their biggest crowd was 63,931 against AC Milan, their smallest 21,678. Two matches in the Italian First Division attracted less than 1,000 spectators during the season: Lecco-Venezia (600) and Venezia-AS Roma (544). Luigi Riva, of Cagliari, was Italy's top goalscorer with 23 goals. Sixty-nine players received their marching orders in Division I, but Inter only had one player sent off.

Another French defeat

The future of French national team manager Just Fontaine is very much in doubt after France's 2-4 defeat by the Soviet Union in Paris last Saturday week. France have not won a friendly international since 1960 when they beat Chile 6-0 in Paris. Fontaine has been severely criticized for his recent team selections and tactics. Against the Russians, for instance, he picked six players from Nantes and not one from St. Etienne, the new French champions. According to well-informed sources he may be sacked within a month and replaced by Albert Batteux, coach of the great Reims team of the 1950's — in which Fontaine had himself starred.

FULL REPORT ON MANCHESTER UTD. v. SYDNEY XI.

GAME SYDNEY XI. EXTENDED BRITISH STARS

— By PAUL DEAN —

What could fairly be described as a typical Lancashire summer night — rain, drizzle and mist — accompanied Manchester United's debut in Sydney last week.

The 25,000-odd spectators braving the elements at the ghastly Showground went home fully entertained: they saw glimpses of United's greatness, an exciting and far from uneven clash and a surprisingly smart Sydney XI.

United were clearly superior in the first half, swinging the ball with purpose from wing to wing and breaking through towards Corry's goal with alarming ease.

In this period Denis Law showed us just why his heading prowess is so highly respected and feared: the first goal rocketed off his blond head with the force of a cannon.

George Best was at his impish best, sending three defenders the wrong way with one little jerk of his hip and the slightest shake of his toes which move with the incredible flexibility of a pianist's fingers.

One would have expected, especially after the Brisbane experience, that in the second half Manchester would increase the pressure and stage a barrage, scoring another four or five goals.

But this was not to be. United slowed down, having lost Crerand through injury and no doubt starting to worry about the possibility of getting more bruises than they bargained for.

As United's efficient motor began to miss some beats, the Sydney team gradually came into the picture.

With tremendous courage and zest, the Sydneysiders took the initiative and gamely tested United's defence.

Manchester were defending stoutly and even Bobby Charlton dropped back deep, marshalling his men in a style reminiscent of his best days.

At this stage the match was a real contest without masters and pupils, just two fine teams struggling to gain the upper hand.

I thought Manchester played every bit as well as in Brisbane — Charlton gave an even superior performance — and it was only in the second half that they took things a bit easier.

However, the opposition was much stiffer than they could have expected — this Sydney team I would rate a clear five goals better than the Queensland I saw.

To go down only 0-3 against such a formidable opposition, even if they were not flat out, is highly creditable.

It must also be remembered that the Sydney XI never had one proper training run together, let alone practice matches.

Despite this, they played at least as well as Australia against Scotland — perhaps even better.

Coach Joe Marston undoubtedly deserves credit for one important thing: he refused to organise a tight, blanket defence and ruin the match as a spectacle.

He correctly anticipated that Manchester United would not be desperate to annihilate and humiliate their opponents — and so sent out his untested team with the instruction to "play football."

This they did, much better than we had the right to expect under the circumstances.

As colleague Lou Gautier is dealing with the performances of players elsewhere, I keep out of this.

However, this summary would not be complete without some mention of the superb display of John Watkiss as the Sydney team's pivot.

This was his finest 90 minutes in football, of this I'm sure.

Facing three of the world's greatest forwards in Law, Charlton and Best, the lanky APIA star was cool, relaxed and deadly efficient.

Details:

Sydney XI: Corry; Lincoln, Hillsdon (Van Blerk); Hughes, Watkiss, Westwater; Campbell (Holden), Giles, Warren, Baartz, Reynolds.

Manchester United: Stepney; Brennan, Dunne; Crerand (Sadler), Foulkes, Stiles; Best, Law, Charlton, Kidd, Aston.

Scorers: Law 15 min., Best 23 and 40 mins.

WATKISS, BEST LEAD PARADE

— By LOU GAUTIER —

George Best, the Northern Irish international winger, was the star of the Sydney v. Manchester United match last Wednesday week.

He was easily United's best player.

Other visitors to catch the eye were the promising young inside-forward Brian Kidd, fullbacks Brennan and Dunne and stopper Foulkes.

Watkiss was the pick of the spirited Sydney XI.

He was the best player on the field after the interval and stood the comparison with United's world class array of stars.

Hughes, Corry and Baartz were other local players who performed with great distinction.

This is how we saw the players and referee perform:

SYDNEY

CORRY confounded his critics with a brilliant performance. Made only one mistake during the whole 90 minutes. Both his handling and clearances were superb.

LINCOLN, the lion-hearted, fought pugnaciously and held Aston well. Bubbling with energy, he broke up many attacks and made a first class representative debut.

HILLSDON, too, came through the match with flying colors. Sydney's most under-rated defender fully justified his overdue selection and acquitted himself well against the awesome Best.

HUGHES did the work of two men in midfield and also played an attacking role which twice nearly resulted in goals. One of the best men on the field, he did not pale in comparison with United's stars.

WATKISS, Australia's most versatile player, was one of the stars of the match. Imperial in defence, he stole the thunder from his world-class opponents in the second half when he was the best man on the field.

WESTWATER didn't play as well as against Scotland. Obviously tired, he was slower than usual, but he still covered up well in midfield.

CAMPBELL, who played one half, was not seen much. Out of his depth in this company, the youngster, however, will be the richer for the experience.

HOLDEN, Campbell's second half replacement, disappointed and didn't have the steady influence anticipated. Far too slow, he held up many attacks.

GILES again failed to rise to the occasion in big time football. Played better than against Scotland, but lacked enterprise.

WARREN'S repeated efforts in the past few days caught up with him. Visibly weary, he was too static but gave a few nice passes.

BAARTZ was the best Australian forward. Dynamic and forceful, he chased every ball and wasn't afraid to shoot whenever he had the chance.

REYNOLDS started promisingly but lost his nerve and dash after his altercation with Crerand midway through the first half. Messed up some good chances.

VAN BLERK replaced the injured Hillsdon in the 76th minute and quickly integrated himself in the magnificent Sydney defence.

MANCHESTER UNITED

STEPNEY didn't look too safe in the first 15 minutes when he fumbled a few times. Had little to do for most of the match.

BRENNAN, cool and steady, seldom ventured out of his area. A professional through and through, he looked the complete defender.

DUNNE was never in any bother against Campbell, then Holden.

CRERAND initiated many creative moves and also impressed as a tough, no-nonsense defender.

FOULKES showed up as a constructive purveyor of passes to his forwards as well as a rock-like pillar of defence.

STILES had a quiet game, but at times was goaded by the plucky Sydneysiders into some of his characteristic aggressiveness.

BEST fully lived up to his reputation. There was genius in everything he did. His dribbles were unstoppable and his two goals had greatness stamped all over. Perhaps a trifle too individualistic in the second half, however.

LAW, we regret to say, did not live up to his fame. Apart from the first 15 minutes little was seen of his reputed effervescence.

CHARLTON was rarely seen as a striker. He played a deep-lying role, setting up many magnificent passes to his wingers. Disappointed only those who expected to see more of his devastating shooting.

KIDD, in the first half, showed why he is soon expected to rank with the best in England. A forceful, yet imaginative player, he played havoc with the Sydney defence and set up Law's goal. Much less prominent after the interval.

ASTON saw plenty of the ball. A fast, modern winger, he didn't have it all his own way against the Sydney defence.

SADLER replaced Crerand in the 55th minute and quickly settled down to a close-marking midfield assignment.

Referee H. PARSONS didn't have a sinecure as some "needle" crept into the game. Acquitted himself well, however, and allowed the game to proceed freely.

Bobby Charlton in a typical pose against Queensland.

Highlights

— By ALAN SPEERS —

Here is a recorded story of the highlights of last week's Manchester United v. Sydney XI match.

8.35: With rain sweeping down the length of the Showground, Law cleverly intercepts a poor goal kick by Corry, swivels to shoot, but is neatly dispossessed by the alert Watkiss.

8.36: A minute later, his spring-heeled leap carries him above the Sydney defenders, but his header is wide.

8.38: Sydney is desperately unlucky not to take a shock lead when Hughes, beating two defenders, hits the cross bar with a tremendous, right-footed drive.

8.42: Though under some heavy pressure from the Manchester forwards, Sydney are not over-awed and Reynolds has Stepney scrambling to clear from a corner kick.

8.44: Law opens Manchester's scoring with a deft header from Kidd's flighted cross from the right wing.

8.47: With the red-shirted United men now in full cry, Corry gratefully grasps a rebound from a close range shot by Best.

8.50: Almost another goal by United as Watkiss clears from underneath his bar, with the ever-present Law lurking right behind him.

8.53: Best, showing the incredible ball control which bedevils Sydney throughout the first half, hooks the ball high into the net from an almost impossible position.

8.57: Lincoln, ice-cool in his representative debut, dives full length to head clear a dangerous centre. Soon after he robs Law, much to the delight of the partisan crowd.

9.07: Best again! With Sydney's defenders flat-footed looking on, he forces Corry into a daring save at his feet.

9.09: This time Best makes no mistake as he weaves past Watkiss and Westwater, and crashes the ball into the net past the helpless Corry.

9.29: Three goals up at half time, Manchester ease the pressure noticeably, and first Kidd, then Crerand are injured. Crerand leaves the field.

9.44: Watkiss, much more composed than some of his team mates, calmly clears the ball from his goal-line with Corry well beaten.

9.46: Reynolds, put clean through by Giles, screws the ball well wide of the goal with only Stepney to beat.

9.47: Warren heads straight into Stepney's hands, then Hughes, a tiger in both defence and attack, is wide with a speculative shot.

10.02: Charlton, moving with deceptive casualness, has Corry at full length to tip a thundering shot onto the crossbar.

10.03: With time running out fast, Giles is injured after a clash with Law.
